Forecast For Yorkshire & the Humber
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Monday 22 Mar 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Fine with pleasant sunny spells.

Today:
Chilly to start, developing into a dry day, with pleasant warm sunny spells in light winds. Feeling warmer than on Sunday for many, especially so in the east and in coastal districts. Maximum temperature 14 deg C (57 deg F).

Tonight:
Staying dry with clear spells during the evening, but tending to become cloudier and breezier later in the night. A touch of frost is possible in prone spots. Minimum temperature 1 deg C (34 deg F).

Tuesday:
A cloudier and breezier day, perhaps with some patchy drizzle on hills. Some sunny intervals are still possible, mainly in the east, although these will be fewer than of late. Maximum temperature 12 deg C (54 deg F).

Outlook for Wednesday to Friday:
Increasingly breezy and showery during this period, although some sunny spells remain likely. Temperatures dipping to end the working week, otherwise being near average.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.